Luk Cassimon has been a lawyer since 2012. He specializes in tax law. Luk advises multinationals, SMEs, private individuals, and government bodies on taxation in general. His expertise covers tax incentives, wage tax exemption, and compliance-related topics. In addition, he has a broad range of experience supervising (complex) national and international tax compliance monitoring (including transfer pricing monitoring) and the rights of the taxpayer. Luk assists taxpayers throughout every stage of a tax dispute (e.g., during negotiations, opposition proceedings, judicial proceedings) and during unannounced inspections (including e-discovery). Finally, Luk also has a particular interest in the obligations concerning the protection of whistle-blowers.

After his studies, Luk joined a renowned tax law firm, and he took his career to the next step when he joined an international law firm, where he specialized even further in supervising tax inspections. Luk has been working at Monard Law since September 2020.

Luk contributes to legal journals regularly and is often a speaker on tax subject-matters.
