Julie Jamaer specializes in criminal law in general and also white-collar crime. She also handles matters on liability.

Julie obtained a Master of Laws (cum laude) from KU Leuven in 2015, where she specialized in criminal law, international law, and EU law. As part of her legal education, she took part in the Erasmus exchange programme and studied in Paris.

She obtained an additional Master's Degree in EU law (cum laude) from the Université Libre de Bruxelles in 2016. In the same year, Julie worked for four months at the Public Prosecutor's Office of the United Nations' International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia in The Hague. As part of this work experience, Julie took part in the Trial Chamber's convicting of Radovan Karadžić, former President of Republika Srpska and Supreme Commander of its armed forces, of genocide.

Julie started her career as a lawyer by joining Monard Law in September 2016, where she is part of the criminal law and liability law departments.

Since 2018, after she had obtained the Certificate for Special Training in Cassation Proceedings in Criminal Matters, she has been admitted to plead before the Court of Cassation in criminal law proceedings.

In 2019, Julie gained additional hands-on training in providing assistance in interrogations after she completed a special training for lawyers on interrogations in criminal matters.

In 2021, Julie pleaded for the first time before the Court of Assizes, where she achieved a successful outcome.
