

Lawyer – Senior Associate

KURT DEVOS

- Lawyer employment, labour and social security law
- Deputy judge at the labour court
- Lectures in employment law and social security law

+32 (0)9/224 44 28

kurt.devos@monardlaw.be

Let's connect on LinkedIn

Kurt Devos is active in labour law and social security law, with a special interest in international employment.

He advises mainly Belgian and international undertakings, guides companies in the case of social inspections, and conducts proceedings before civil and correctional courts. He handles the editing and reviewing of diverse labour agreements and other contracts and documents.

Kurt Devos has a law degree from Ghent University (1999).

He speaks and writes on matters related to the social law aspects of company (re)organisation and international employment.

Kurt Devos is a member of both the West Flanders Bar and the Ghent Bar, and lectures in employment law and social security law. He is deputy judge at the labour court.

Kurt's academic and judicial background and professional experience can contribute to the team's development of tailor-made solutions for KBC's social law challenges.

Kurt assists companies with their day-to-day management of labour relations (employment contracts, policies, dismissals, insourcing and outsourcing ...). He has a strong litigation experience that is complimented by a commercial background, which is particularly valuable when advising employers as he can advise in a wider commercial context on the employment aspects of doing business. He regularly supports foreign companies as they enter the Belgium market, including on immigration work, and assists employers in social inspectorates.